No responsibility can be accepted for errors (if any) not marked clearly on proof. Author's alterations on and after the first proof including alterations in style will be charged extra.

When you proof read we ask that you do so very carefully and thoroughly. If any typographical errors of our own are found in these proofs they will, of course, be corrected free of charge. However, any changes from original copy or changes in style are classed as 'Author's Alterations' and a charge will be made on a time-required basis.
